THE LEGEND OF THE GEARBOX

In the middle of Lake Forest campus a pole rises from the ground. According to legend, the pole is really a shift to a gigantic gearbox. The gearbox is in neutral and with it the whole campus. Rumor has it that should anyone succeed in shifting the pole forward the mother earth will open, spewing out a horrible gas, and consume the entire campus.

REALLY TOGETHER: Glimpses of a coed dormitory at Lake Forest (Illinois) and a Stanford shower room indicate the matter-of-fact way in which students have adapted to coed living. A Lake Forest student who lives in a mixed dorm claims that life is "very relaxed, even though some of the girls don't like to be seen in cur-

The Pennant Red and Black

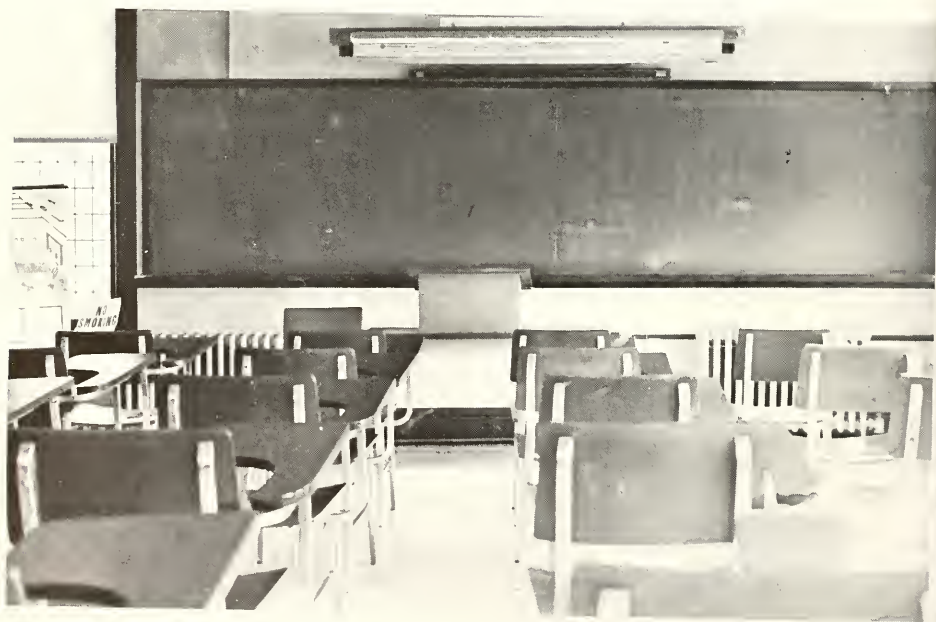

When the noise of day-time ceases
And the evening shadows fall,
And the firelight casts a mystic
Flick'ring glow upon the wall,
While I sit in meditation
And my college days call back,
There before me, o'er the mantel
Hangs a pennant red and black.

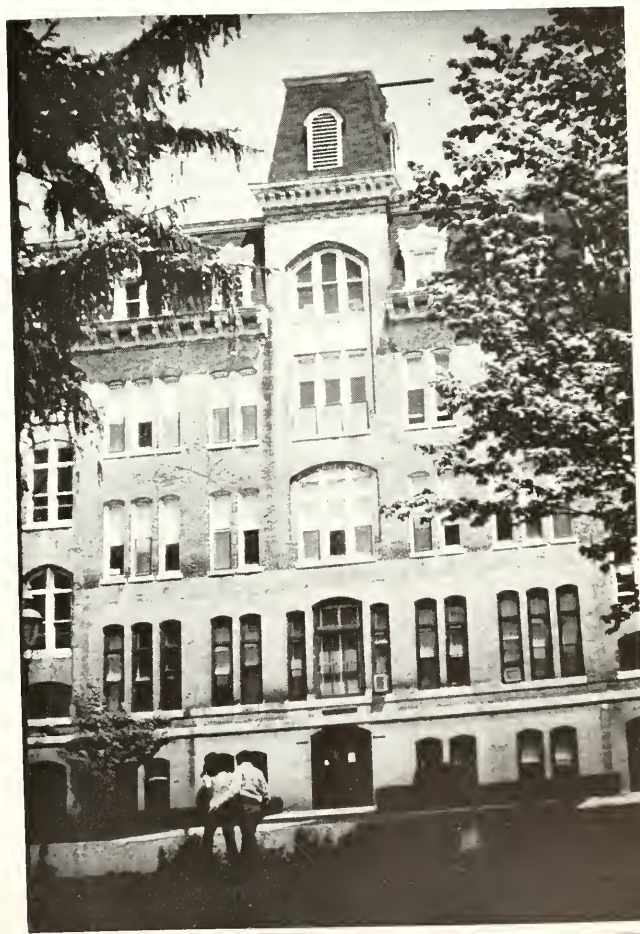

Oh, what mem'ries linger round it!
How it takes me back once more
To our dear Lake Forest campus
That we still love and adore.
There we used to gather often
And our voices all unite
In a shout that rent the heavens
And inspired us with delight.

Fairest trophy in a thousand,
Treasured more than words can tell,
May thy colors ever triumph,
May thy children e'er do well.
And when countless years have passed us
Though our friends may all be dead,
In thy glory we will still rejoice,
Oh, pennant black and red.

Dear Mr. Assarian and Mr. Squires:

President Nixon has asked me to thank you for your letter requesting a message for your college yearbook.

The President will send a message to the Senior Class of Lake Forest College later in the school year, simultaneously with messages to colleges throughout the country.

I am sorry that I cannot assure you that the President's message will arrive in time for publication in your yearbook.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Editor:

It's very good of you to want to know about us. Most people don't think much of us. You hear a lot about the Seniors with their privileges and superiority, and about the Juniors and their awful Junior History, but people don't say much about the Preps. It's certain we haven't many privileges to brag about; we are too modest to crow about our superiority; and we have never had a chance to make a name by passing a history exam. Then, you will say, there is nothing left for us but to be nonentities. That would probably be our fate if it wasn't for Field day. That is when people learn we can do things. We always win in all the stunts from hurdles and broad jump to the potato race. Just look at the inscriptions on the cup and you'll see this is true. We could tell you how we have scaled walls to put our colors above all others; how we have smuggled in the most original mascots; and how we have always produced the most enthusiastic yells. But you must be weary of hearing the Juniors and Seniors sing their own praises so we will spare you. We may not be great now, but you'll hear from us in the years to come when we are Juniors and Seniors and have a chance to show how we would run things.

Hoping this is what you wanted to know, we are,

Gratefully Yours,

THE PREPS.

In attempting to work within a theme for the 1974 yearbook, we the editors decided upon "The Last Hurrah." For every senior, to whom this book is dedicated, graduation is the final hurrah for a plateau in life.

We only hope that this book will provide seniors and others with memories of people and places they came to know during their college career.
